

T BATHROOM TRENDS

Volume 24 No 10

$10.95

Trendsideas.com

$10.95US

90>

0 74470 38114 3

Mediterranean revival

Understated earthy tones are enhanced by richer, iridescent detailing in this dramatic and light-filled master suite

Architect: William Harrison, AIA, Bulent Baydar, AIA, Lindsay Weiss, Harrison Design (Atlanta, GA)

Interior designer: Lisa Torbett Interiors

Contractor: Steve Bostic, Island Design & Architectural Center

Product source and supply: Island Design & Architectural Center

Master bath countertop: Negrette Picudo limestone

Basin: Rendezvous undercounter Toto in white

Faucets and shower fittings: Perrin & Rowe Rohl in English Bronze

Flooring: Negrette Picudo brushed and chiselled limestone

Lighting: Chandelier from Curry & Co

Drapes: F Schumacher, Empire Drapery

Wall covering: Luster Stone

Hot water systems: Rinnai tankless water heater

Story by Camille Butler

Photography by John Umberger

Certain design themes remain popular, no matter what is currently in vogue. With its relaxed, yet opulent colors, and details such as archways and tiled floors, Spanish Revival is a style that will always be alive and well.

The master bathroom in this home follows the Spanish Revival style evident in the rest of the house. A high, double-vaulted ceiling finished in gold leaf is adorned with a wrought iron chandelier. Mosaic tiles on the outside of the tub add luster, while adhering to the theme, says project architect Bulent Baydar from Harrison Design Associates.

"The tub is positioned to float in the space, bringing a sense of dynamic tension to the room, which is emphasized by the angles coming down from the vaulted ceiling. Its position also allows for a wide surround, providing space for candles and decorations," he says.

Colors in the bathroom are earthy, yet highlighted by the shine of details, such as the gold picture and mirror frames and the candle fixtures above the vanity, as well as the gold silk curtains.

The bedroom uses the same color palette, but is understated in comparison, with cool green and gold tones that are illuminated by natural light flooding in through the large windows.

Facing page: The master bedroom in this Mediterranean-style house features a calming green-and-gold color scheme.

Above left: Elements of gold, such as the mirror frame and the silk curtains, bring out the glitter of the mosaic tiles in the tub surround.

Above: A double-vaulted ceiling adds a sense of drama.